GOVERNOR JAMES IS TO WED MRS. CASE AT CO. SEAT TOMORROW

Regarded As Most Important Event in History of Doylestown

MANY CELEBRITIES

Cabinet Members, State Officials, Reporters, Many Others Jam Town

(By A. Russell Thomas)

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 30.—This County Seat of Bucks County, rich in historic background, has had many unusual events in the course of its existence, but tomorrow's "most important wedding in all its history" is topping all events as a drawing card for "Who's Who" in Pennsylvania social and political life.

The town is full of people, including newspapermen and women, press photographers, Cabinet members, State Senators, college professors, and others, for Wednesday noon, in the Doylestown Deep Run Presbyterian Church, Mrs. Emily Radcliffe Case, pretty Doylestown widow, will become the new First Lady of Pennsylvania when she marries Pennsylvania's Governor, Arthur H. James.

Both have been married before. Mrs. Case's first husband was Dr. Claude Case, who died in 1935. The Governor's first wife died the same year. It was at Clifton Springs (N. Y.) Sanatorium that the late Dr. Case was medical director and it was there that Mrs. Case and the Governor met in 1935, when the Governor's wife, who died that year, was at the sanatorium.

Tomorrow Governor James becomes the second Governor in State history to marry in office. The only other gubernatorial marriage on record was that of Martin G. Brumbaugh, World War Governor in 1915-1919.

The Governor and his party, including his daughter, Miss Dorothy James; the Governor's secretary and several others in the official family will arrive in town tonight and will stay at the historic Fountain House.

To Aid in Issuing Birth Certificates in County

Pennsylvanians in quest of birth certificates will be helped to obtain them by field agents of the State Department of Health throughout the Commonwealth, it has been announced by Acting Secretary of Health, Dr. A. H. Stewart.

Sanitarians of the Health Department, according to Dr. Stewart, have received instructions for assisting applicants to produce the proper documentary evidence required by the State Bureau of Vital Statistics in issuing a birth certificate to persons born before 1906 when births were unrecorded by the State.

Two hours a day for two days each week will be devoted to the work by the sanitarians, acting as contact or liaison officers between the applicants and the Vital Statistics Bureau, directed by Tom E. Williams. In these communities where the State maintains a full-time medical officer, the sanitarians will establish quarters in his office. The home of the Department representative or State clinics will be used where State medical officers are employed only part-time.

State sanitarians Albert M. Morris will act as special registrar for Bucks County applicants Tuesday from 2 to 4 P. M.; and Thursdays, 7 to 9 p. m., at the Town Hall, Langhorne.

Mobilization of the Health Department's sanitarians in support of the Vital Statistics Bureau is designed to reduce delay in obtaining the birth certificates for which there has been a heavy demand occasioned by the insistence of National Defense Industries that their employees furnish proof of United States citizenship.

STATE TO SET UP PLAN TO AID THE EX-SOLDIERS

System of Employment Aid Will Soon Be in Operation

TO NAME COMMITTEE

By Raymond Wilcox

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HARRISBURG, Sept. 30.—A system of employment aid will soon be set up in Pennsylvania for the benefit of draftees mustered out of service, especially those who reach the age of 28.

State selective service officials said Gov. Arthur H. James would soon announce the appointment of 422 re-employment committeemen, one for each selective service board in the state. These officials, who will serve without pay, will attempt to see to it that soldiers who return to private life obtain work.

"The re-employment committeemen will act as a liaison man between the returning soldier, his draft board and employers in his district," explained a spokesman for the state selective service headquarters.

Here is the way the plan, which is being placed in operation throughout the entire nation, will work:

Some time before a draftee receives his honorable discharge from the Army, the re-employment committeemen will be notified. It will then be his task to check the type of work done by the soldier before he entered the Army. The committeemen will also contact the soldier's former employer to see whether his job is still open.

When the soldier returns home he will contact his committeemen and will inform him of his exact status.

"He will tell his committeemen whether he is returning to his old job, whether he has a new one in prospect, or if he is unemployed," explained the state selective service spokesman.

The re-employment committeemen will work "very closely" with the personnel managers of industries within their districts, it was stated, "and it will be up to them to keep themselves advised of job opportunities."

The first trickle of men discharged from the Army under the 25-year rule are now beginning to return home and more are expected in the near future. A batch of some 200 are expected to be released soon from the U. S. military post at Indiantown Gap and officials there believe that some 2000 men in all will be honorably discharged from the 28th Division.

Pennsylvanians from camps outside the state are also beginning to return home. Many of the discharged soldiers are expected to receive their old jobs.

Warns of 3-Barrel Warfare By Nazis

London, Sept. 30.—A warning that Adolf Hitler may soon expand Nazi warfare into a three-barreled drive against Russia, North Africa and England itself was delivered by Prime Minister Winston Churchill today.

Germany may even go through thus far peaceful Spain to reach North Africa, the Prime Minister said.

Addressing the House of Commons, Churchill emphasized the need for continued and growing British and American aid to Russia but at the same time stressed the difficulties of transportation.

He encouraged his hearers, however, in these words:—

1—The British Royal Air Force stands ready to bomb even Rome heavily "whenever convenient and possible."

2—Britain's army, now supported by a home guard of two million men, is equally prepared "to hurl any invader into the sea."

3—Britain "no longer stands alone," for both the United States and Soviet Russia are acting in concert with her "against the crimes of the enemy."

Crooks, state president, in speaking before 600 women attending the Southeastern District Pennsylvania Federation of Women's Clubs, here on Friday, had as their respective topics, "The United States in World Affairs," and "Our Defense Program."

The two speakers, who appeared in the Presbyterian Church, stressed the importance of clubwomen taking part in the national defense program.

Highlights of the conference were talks by Mrs. Harvey H. Steckel, who emphasized the need for teaching patriotism to young people in a practical way, and especially by example in exercising the franchise and other acts of good citizenship—and by Mrs. David J. Declaring that "we are now undergoing a counter-world revolution," Mrs. Goodwin said the revolution which we are now experiencing is based on want and fear of want. "We may have to forego some things to live in a peaceful world."

She was placed upon the horse by her uncle, John Young, Jr., who led the horse back and forth in the lane at the John Young farm, near Perkasio.

Finally he told the child to ride the horse toward the barn. She slipped from the saddle and her foot caught in the stirrup. The horse became frightened and ran, but fortunately her foot slipped from the stirrup before serious injury resulted. She suffered brush burns and bruises.

Mrs. Marie Fehr, Perkasio, received burns about the hands and arms that required medical attention when gas which had accumulated in the oven of her range ignited with a flash when she attempted to light the gas.

Name New Assistant Controller at Fleetwings

Charles L. Nielson, formerly of Scovell, Wellington & Company, Certified Public Accountants and Engineers of New York City, has been appointed assistant controller of Fleetwings, Inc.

Prior to his coming to the local aircraft organization Mr. Nielson not only supervised audit accounts, but also operated as a "methods and systems" engineer. In the latter capacity he participated in the famous "rehabilitation program" of the United States Steel Corporation during 1935, 1936 and 1937. At that time the steel corporation's new young management had decided on a program of modernization, and the activities of Mr. Nielson and his staff resulted in great simplification of the complex clerical and cost set-up of the company.

While employed as consultant for the Literary Guild of America, monthly book club, Mr. Nielson helped devise office equipment that would satisfactorily and efficiently handle the type of operations of that organization. Through the use of newly developed equipment and the plan of organization suggested by Mr. Nielson, efficiency was stepped up considerably and the large seasonal peaks were handled without disruption in routine.

In his new position at Fleetwings Mr. Nielson will assist I. S. Wilson, treasurer and controller.

LOW WATER LEVEL IN THE CANAL MAY HAMPER MILLS HERE

Little Hope for Rain Until Tomorrow, is The Forecast

CROPS ARE SUFFERING

Sellersville Limits the Use of Water to Necessities Only

Little hope for rain until tomorrow was held out today to Eastern Pennsylvania residents facing water shortages and crop damage as the result of a 35-day drought harassing the entire Commonwealth.

In Bucks county Sellersville proclaimed a state of emergency and limited water to necessities, while in Delaware county housewives complained of a strong salt taste in Chester's water supply.

Chester County and surrounding areas reported the yield of carrots, beets, spinach and celery is being cut down by the lack of rain. Low streams in suburban Philadelphia forced closing of four paper mills.

In Bristol the industries which take considerable water for industrial purposes from the canal are watching the skies with anxious eyes. The water level in the canal is very low here and while the water which is used for industrial purposes is returned to the canal, yet it is said that the water level is now getting down to a point where if it should go much lower, the factories here using the canal as a source of water supply, may have difficulty in operating.

Firemen Consider Planning For Defense

Chiefs of fire companies in the area adjacent to Bristol and the members of the Bristol Consolidated Fire Department met in the assembly room of the Municipal Building, last night, to discuss the part firemen will play in the defense plans of Bucks County.

Clifford Hagerman, chief of the Bristol Consolidated Department, has been named deputy air raid warden for this area. Chief Hagerman outlined to those present what had been suggested in the way of plans.

"It is up to the chiefs of the fire companies in the various districts to make their own plans," said Chief Hagerman. "It is not for me to tell you fellows what to do. You know your own districts better than I do, but you can rest assured that we will give you all the aid that we can."

Assistant Chief Joseph Buck also explained to the meeting some of the plans which had been outlined and suggested by those who are heading this defense unit in Bucks County.

THE WORLD SERIES

Comes October, and interest in the United States centers on the World Series almost to the preclusion of all else, including war. This year the neck-and-neck finish between the Dodgers and the Cardinals for possession of the National League pennant supplied the build-up needed for a roaring finish of the 1941 season of the national pastime.

There is little of national unity or of the spirit of may-the-best-team-win in the World Series this year, or ever. Every baseball fan, be he 14 or 80, has been gradually conditioning himself for wild partisanship in the World Series, ever since the beginning of the season in April. He knew then which teams would win the respective pennants, and in fact the World Series, and if he has been forced to adopt a more tenable stand as the season progressed, perhaps more than once, the experience, he is convinced, has broadened him and made him more competent than perhaps any other fan in the country to assay the probabilities and arrive at pure truth as to the merits of the respective teams.

After that, predicting the outcome remains a mere incident.

There is that about baseball which is at once satisfying and earthy. It is possible to put in a lot of time at baseball without seeing a game and enjoy the sport immensely. A baseball fan never feels that he is putting on the dog, or that he is trying to rise above the common, everyday sort of people. Perhaps there is something about the game which is conducive to development of interest centered in one topic, and this the baseball fan defiantly will admit. If he turns to the baseball news, spurning the front page, and tunes in the radio only to learn how the teams fared, he cannot imagine anything to be more important.

That's the way of baseball. When it snares a fan, he is indeed snared.

If the Russians expect to make the headlines, they erred when they appointed Major Ovchinnikov head of the air mission to the United States.

two weeks ago, without a single accident, this report of ten deaths in nine days in the Bucks county area seems unbelievable. People become panicky and a great many are not skilled drivers."

The latest deaths included William Millen, 33, of Lansford, driver of an automobile that collided head-on with another car Saturday morning on the Bethlehem Pike, south of Sellersville, in which three men were instantly killed. Millen died Sunday night in the Grand View Hospital at Sellersville.

Others killed in the accident included Joseph Ryan, 28, Mahanoy City; Jerome Nolan, 30, Barnesville; and Joseph Rudner, 29, of Birch street, Lansford.

A few minutes before Millen died in the Grand View Hospital, Sunday evening, George John Sowers, 14, Telford R. D. 2, son of William Sowers, died of injuries received last Friday night when his bicycle was hit by a car driven by C. Willard Cressman, 47, of Telford R. D. 2.

The accident happened on Morris road, a quarter mile west of Lederach, Montgomery county, and Sowers was taken to Grand View Hospital. A fractured skull was the cause of death. An officer from the Collegeville sub station of Motor Police, will place Cressman, a moulder, under arrest on a technical charge of involuntary manslaughter.

Dr. H. Clayton Moyer, of Blooming Glen, coroner of Bucks county, has been kept busy day and night for the past nine days, for the investigation of nine highway deaths in nine days has been his lot. The tenth death was

Nationally-Known Reader To Appear in Langhorne

LANGHORNE, Sept. 30—"It's Curtain Time," an original character sketch, together with 25 short monologues, will be presented by Cornelia Stabler, monologist, in Friends Meeting House on October 9th at eight p. m.

Miss Stabler is especially endeared to Bucks Countians since she was born at George School, Pennsylvania, where her father was the professor of Latin and Greek and Housemaster of Orton Hall. Cornelia Stabler's first applause came from three floors of boys when they heard that a little girl had been born in the apartment below.

After attending George School as a student, she graduated from Swarthmore College, and continued her dramatic study at the Theodora Irvine Studio for the Theatre, New York City, and at the Columbia University under Hatcher Hughes and Milton Smith. Active participation in the theatre field includes the direction for several seasons of the Swarthmore College plays and the Barn Studio Summer Theatre at Buck Hill Falls, Pa. Radio has also engaged the talents of this artist; she has many times appeared in dramatic sketches broadcast over the major radio chains. And last winter she entertained at the White House for the President and Mrs. Roosevelt and their guests.

Cornelia Stabler has also gained prominence in writing for the theatre and radio and as the author of several civic pageants. But the solo theatre continues to be her first love. Her original character sketches comprise some 25 short monologues and the full length solo drama entitled "It's Curtain Time" which she will present at the Meeting House. The latter is a sequence of seven sketches which develop a single plot through the personalities of the five women of the story.

Pastor, Bristol Presbyterian Church

Almighty and Eternal God, made bold by Thy promises and by our own experience of Thy blessings, we come to Thee once again. We praise Thee for Thy mercies so great and numberless. We beseech Thee, O Lord, to forgive our sins, for Thou delightest to pardon; whether sins of wrong-doing, of evil passion, or duties left undone. Forgive them all, we pray, and stamp the assurance of pardon, of peace, and of acceptance upon our hearts, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

Tense drama mingles with comedy and romance in "Dr. Kildare's Wedding Day," latest in the Dr. Kildare series, now showing at the Grand Theatre with Lew Ayres, Lionel Barrymore, Laraine Day, and Nils Asther as guest star.

The mystery is furnished by Asther, playing a famous symphony conductor, who discovers himself gradually becoming deaf from some unknown ailment. Ayres and Barrymore, as Dr. Kildare and his preceptor, Dr. Gillespie, tackle the problem. During this action the youthful romance of the older physician is disclosed. He loved a beautiful girl, a musician, who died, leaving behind her life work, a symphony. In the dramatic climax this symphony is played by Asther's orchestra.

BRISTOL THEATRE

Packing all the excitement and fun of a Time Square traffic jam on New Year's Eve, "Two in a Taxi" opened at the Bristol Theatre yesterday. Anita Louise and Russell Hayden are Also, as part of a double feature, "Mr. District Attorney," featuring Dennis O'Keefe and Peter Lorre, is at the Bristol.

It dives into a raging torrent with Robert Sterling, Donna Reed and Charles Winninger for a thrill in "The Get-Away," current attraction at the Ritz Theatre.

Jerry Smith, "The Yodeling Cowboy," appears in "West of Pinto Basin" at the Ritz Theatre.

PSYCHOLOGY BUILT FALLSINGTON TO ITS FIRST FOOTBALL VICTORY IN MANY A GRID MOON

By Jack Gill

Psychology built Fallsington to its first football victory in many a grid moon over Langhorne last week. Deception ruined Coach Norwood Wetherhold's debut at Bensalem and plucked a near victory from the weathery Owl. Power ran roughshod over Morrisville at Trenton Saturday evening as Trenton licked the Dogs, 27-7. The ability of a guard to properly pull out and form interference for a back aided Jules Mate to have a dandy time in defeating Bristol.

Cross currents of conversation covering the schoolboy grid action of last week were critical, catchy, but on the whole conservative. Early season flaws and mistakes were regarded as a mere matter of form.

Fallsington High School actually stole the story of the week from their larger school adversaries. Behind by a 7 to 0 count at halftime, the Falcons were transformed into an aroused unit as they passed Langhorne dizzy in an eighteen point last half uprising to snatch an 18 to 7 verdict.

All football games aren't won on tactical maneuvers and neatly executed power plays. Many minor incidents tend to weave fantastical and sometimes sentimental angles into the won and lost column.

You've all heard the story of George Gippy, Notre Dame hero, whose name has become a legend around the traditional campus of the Irish. Coaches have often made their lives miserable in frantic attempts to key their men to greater heights. Gil Dobie, former grand old man of Cornell football, faced trouble with a lethargic squad one autumn.

A small 150 pound rookie back was injured in a Tuesday scrimmage. As Dobie walked to the fallen form and as the squad grouped around, a snarling twist formed at his mouth as he uttered, "Carry this baby off the field."

The players gasped as the attendants picked the kid back up. His bone nearly pierced the skin of his flesh. It was badly broken. Horrified, the players were ready for the kill at a coach who didn't retain enough dignity to even treat a fellow-man decently.

The result found Cornell players tearing and slashing through the remainder of the session. For the first time that year Dobie had whipped his men into proper mental mettle. They remained that way for Saturday's game.

The coach had to go to the infirmary to tell the kid the story. Luckily for the veteran mentor, he lived to be redeemed in the eyes of his men. But the story is one of many that are enacted on campus lawns throughout the nation.

Fallsington is now playing football for a purpose. For many seasons the little school went without a victory. Players naturally fell prey to that inferior attitude known in athletic circles as the "defeatist complex." It's the same type of shiftless and unchartered life that many humans are prone to become subject to in the face of successive failure.

The greatest form of installing confidence in boys or men is the act of coming on top in competitive activity. As a result, you'll find sport as the basic form of extra-curricular character betterment in high schools.

A haphazard sports policy in a high school tends to throw a boy off-key. If it not economically possible to sponsor a 100% program, then competitive activity should not be fostered. Because boys who have marked ability are thrown against a group of boys from a neighboring town of no better ability, but of finer coaching. This is both unequal and unfair.

Luckily, most sectional high schools have adequate schedules in the physical education line. For that reason, our games are spirited affairs with but a few touchdowns or points separating victory from defeat.

Mike DeRisi, Fallsington coach, who graduated from West Chester, used a well outlined program of psychology in re-building Fallsington. As the school began to drop more and more eleven man games, officials decided to abandon the sport until such time that student enrollment saw fit to re-enter the grid picture. This proved to be a wise move.

Instead of inaugurating soccer, DeRisi started six-man football. Soccer would be new and would mean immediate defeat again for at least a season. But Fallsington went hot in six-man football and won 15 out of 16 games. A new confidence prevailed.

This season Fallsington bounced back with a win. It's been many a long time since Fallsington has won a game, and longer yet since they tallied eighteen points.

"I believe we have the defeatist complex licked," recently remarked DeRisi. "This year for the first time we have real spirit both in the team and the school. We have a squad of managers, a committee working to advertise our games, a little band and general enthusiasm. I tell you it's great."

And don't think the Fallsington coach didn't remind his men of the fact that their actions on the field this year would mean the permanent retention of football at the school, during half-time. He burned them up and they snorted steam and spit fire in a great rally. Spotting Langhorne's seven man line, they passed the Redskins dizzy before they fell back into a defense.

Yes, flanking deception ruined Bensalem, fine offensive blocking backfired against Bristol and power defeated Morrisville. But little Fallsington relied on one of those incidents to pull a game out of the bag.

TWO LOCAL BOXERS TO FIGHT IN GOLDEN GLOVE TOURNAMENT

Albert Turner and William McCollick Sign For The Elimination 'Tourney'

ANOTHER MAY ENTER

Clem Kinsey May Get Into The Ring at The Last Minute

Two local amateur fighters and possibly a third will be seen in action in the Golden Glove Tournament which opens tonight in the Philadelphia Arena, 45th and Market streets.

The pair of localities who have already signed for the elimination tournament which runs three days are: Albert Turner and William McCollick. Clem Kinsey may be a last-minute entry. All three boys fought under the colors of the Diamond Sporting Club. Daily, Turner and McCollick have been doing their training chores in the St. Ann's gym under the guidance of the Castor brothers, Carl and Chet. The boys will have to be in tip-top shape for they will be competing against the best boys in the eastern district of the A. A. U.

Turner has been placed in the 118 pound class while McCollick fights in the 126 pound class. Turner is the boxer sort of a fighter and resorts to plenty of hitting and dancing around while McCollick is very rugged and packs a knockout punch in either his right or left hand.

The Castor brothers are also grooming the remainder of the Diamond fighters for the Ledger tournament which opens next month and will contain a sub-novice class for the fighters of less experience.

It is the hope of the Bristolians to take home at least one championship in one of the two tournaments. The winner of each class in the Golden Glove tournament gets a gold-filled championship medal and a 17 jewel rolled gold late model wrist watch while the runner-up will receive a sterling silver championship medal and also a wrist watch. All contestants will receive an 18 karat gold plated Golden Glove Emblem.

ST. ANN'S TO PRACTICE

All candidates for the St. Ann's A. A. football team are requested to report to the clubhouse tonight at 7:30 p. m. A practice session will be held. The St. Ann's management is attempting to book a game for this Sunday.

back but for those who do not the selective service organization will attempt to obtain new employment. It is expected that some of the returned men will have to attend "refresher" courses in which they will be trained to take their places in defense industries.

Still others, with no professional training at all, will attend vocational education in national defense classes where they will learn a trade.

Gov. James Is To Wed Mrs. Case at Co. Seat Tomorrow

Newspapermen from as far away as Pittsburgh, others from Ithaca, N. Y., Harrisburg and New York City, are quartered at the different hotels in the town, awaiting pictures and interviews.

Mrs. Case granted but one pre-wedding interview, and that to a reporter on her home-town newspaper.

Quite a number of well-known professors and their wives from Cornell University will be among the 125 who will attend the wedding, which will be followed by a reception to about 80 at the home of Mrs. Case's mother, Mrs. Robert Anderson Radcliffe, East Ashland street, Doylestown, where Attorney General Claude Reno, will give a toast to the bride. Mrs. Case was house mother at Kappa Alpha Theta sorority for a number of years until she resigned on August 15.

There will be very few Doylestown people at the wedding, only those who were close friends of the next First Lady in her girlhood days in Doylestown, where she attended high school, and was one of the most popular of the younger set. She was always pretty, and still is.

The ceremony will be performed at noon by the Rev. William E. Steckel, of New Ipswich, New Hampshire, who married Mrs. Case on her first trip to the altar in the same home where tomorrow's reception will take place. Rev. Steckel, now retired from the ministry, was among the first to write a letter of congratulation to Mrs. Case after the engagement had been announced. Rev. Steckel will be assisted at the ceremony by the Rev. Dr. Myer M. Hostetter, pastor of the Doylestown Presbyterian Church.

The list of wedding guests will not be published before the ceremony, at the request of the Governor and his bride-to-be. It is known, however, that it numbers about 150 and that practically every member of Governor James' Cabinet will be on hand.

The church is being decorated in white gladioli and palms. The wedding march will be played by Howard M. Barnes, of Doylestown, vice-president of the Doylestown National Bank and organist at the Presbyterian Church for many years.

There will be no attendants, but the two ushers will be Robert S. Radcliffe, of Cleveland Heights, Ohio, a brother of Mrs. Case, and Russell Foss, of Ridgewood, N. J., a cousin of the Governor. The bride's mother, Mrs. Robert Anderson Radcliffe, and the Governor's daughter, Dorothy, will be among those present.

The Governor will wear morning clothes, while Mrs. Case will be attired in a blue silk Jersey dress with simple shirring around a V-neckline; jeweled belt, and a small blue hat to match, and black suede shoes. She will wear a corsage of white orchids.

There will be no rehearsal of the wedding at the church, but the Rev. Steckel and Rev. Hostetter, together with the Governor and his bride-to-be, will get together tonight "to talk things over" at the Radcliffe home, where Mrs. Case lives with her mother, and her sister and husband, Deputy Bucks County Treasurer and Mrs. Charles Rowe.

"We have both been through this before and I don't believe there are many changes," Mrs. Case told her newspaper friend last night. Mrs. Case is a Presbyterian and the Governor is a Methodist.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Radcliffe, Mrs. Case's brother, and their two children, Nancy and Jill, are motoring in from Cleveland and are expected late tonight.

Doylestown's police force, limited in numbers, has offered its assistance for tomorrow's wedding, but a special detail of 50 Pennsylvania Motor Police has been assigned to take care of traffic duty around the church and elsewhere in town. Several Secret Service men will also be on hand at the church.

After the ceremony and reception is over the Governor and his bride will leave by motor in the Governor's special State car for a wedding trip South. They will return to the Executive Mansion in about three weeks.

To Take Bride

GOVERNOR ARTHUR H. JAMES

Who will arrive in Doylestown tonight, in preparation for his marriage tomorrow to Mrs. Emily Radcliffe Case.

"We want to get back in time to see some football games," Mrs. Case said last night. She greatly enjoys football and other sports and has attended many games with the Governor. They plan to take in the Cornell-Dartmouth game on November 16, at Hanover, N. H. They play golf together and have played several times on the Doylestown Country Club course and many times at Irem Temple Country Club, near Wilkes-Barre, five miles from the Governor's cottage on Harvey's Lake.

Among those who will attend the wedding from Harrisburg will be the entire household from the Executive Mansion, including the domestic servants.

The whole affair tomorrow will be as simple as possible. There will be no fanfare of any sort. That's the Governor's wish and command, and his bride-to-be is in favor of that policy.

Photographers will not be allowed to take pictures inside the church during the ceremony, but the Governor and his bride have both said okay on pictures after the ceremony.

"After all, the wedding is our own affair, as I look at it," Mrs. Case remarked. "After it's all over and I become the First Lady of Pennsylvania, then I suppose that I will have to permit myself to be interviewed and photographed when it is necessary, but at the wedding we would like to be by ourselves for a little while at least."

Mrs. Case believes in patronizing "home talent." A Doylestown caterer, Mrs. Charles Brashears, will serve the reception dinner at Mrs. Radcliffe's home. The bride's corsage is also coming from the local florist, Hillborn Darlington.

When asked what she and the Governor intend to do after the Governor's term expires in another 18 months, Mrs. Case replied: "There's nothing definite planned ahead, but I suppose we will live in Arthur's home in Plymouth, Pa. All I know right now is that I'm extremely nervous to think that tomorrow I'll be the wife of the Governor."

Mrs. Case is the daughter of the late Robert Radcliffe, a Frenchtown, N. J., farmer and miller who later moved to Doylestown and became a tree surgeon. He was killed in an auto accident years ago.

Mrs. Case's wedding ring is a plain but handsome diamond band circle. Her engagement ring is gorgeous, including one large diamond and a number of smaller ones in the platinum circle.

It was just about one month ago that the announcement of the engagement was made in Doylestown, a short time after His Excellency spent the week-end with Mrs. Case at her mother's home here.

Announce Soviet Successes On Leningrad Front

Moscow, Sept. 30—Fresh Soviet successes on the Leningrad front where German troops were chased out of a number of nearby towns and villages were reported in Russian advices to Moscow today.

A telephone report to Moscow from Leningrad said defenders of Russia's second city forced the enemy out of a number of surrounding towns yesterday and Sunday and that they were still maintaining the initiative today.

Soviet troops were declared to have recaptured a town on the outskirts of Leningrad and then to have crossed a river, "annihilating a German regiment."

This news from Leningrad followed a pledge of the "fullest possible support" to Russia from the United States. W. Averell Harriman, chief of the American delegation to the Moscow supply conference, made the pledge in a speech at the opening session of the parley.

ence and great economic production fosters internationalism and goodwill. Mrs. Crooks, speaking on "Our Defense Program," said 86,000 clubwomen are waiting in line to do their part and clamoring for something to do.

Mrs. Crooks, who has just made a state-wide tour in connection with familiarizing clubwomen with the aims of the State Federation's niche in the defense program, asserted that the skyline clubwomen are watching is freighted with trouble.

The three avenues as planned by the State Board of the Federation fall into three spheres, spiritual, educational and practical application.

After conferring with Mrs. John Whitehurst and Mayor Fiorella H. La Guardia in New York City, Mrs. Crooks said there is no duplication in the defense program setup anywhere along the line.

"Any Pennsylvania clubwoman who can't find something to do is not really looking for something to take part in," Mrs. Crooks warned.

Mrs. James A. Shook, of Reading, vice-president in the S. D. P. & O. W. C., presided. The Rev. Dr. Meyer M. Hostetter, pastor of the host church, gave the invocation.

Counties represented and the number of clubwomen were as follows: Berks, 87; Bucks, 80; Chester, 67; Delaware, 114; Lancaster, 125; Philadelphia, 58; Schuylkill, 30.

The hostesses included Mrs. Richard Pollock, president of the Montgomery County Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Winfield T. Irwin, president of the Philadelphia County Federation of Women's Clubs; and Mrs. Walter W. Ely, president of the Bucks County Federation of Women's Clubs.

For the afternoon the clubwomen segregated themselves into conferences based on various topics of interest to each delegate.

In order to meet quickly the present needs of the country and to enable those who wish to serve in this capacity to become producers as soon as possible, Dr. Allen indicated that certain modifications in the present course are being introduced, so that the training period will be made as short and intensive as possible, consistent with thorough preparation.

Speakers of prominence are expected to participate in the two-day program that is planned for this 44th annual event. The program will also feature a large number of educational and competitive exhibits which will emphasize certain principles that are taught in the various departments of the school. These departments cover six distinct fields in each of which vocational training of a highly practical nature is offered, and comprise poultry husbandry, dairying, horticulture, farm crops, floriculture and landscape gardening.

The program of exercises and exhibits will be announced shortly.

Four former ministers of the church, who filled the Morrisville pulpit from 1907 until the present pastorate began in May of 1937 will be on hand to present messages to the congregation. script writing, and other business forms. These subjects will be taught by Thomas Coles, of Bristol high school faculty.

Shorthand dictation is also offered in order to give those who need it an opportunity to brush up on the subject. This class will be taught by Miss Virginia Hamilton, a new member of Bristol high school faculty. Very good results are looked for in this course.

Everyday grammar, another new addition, is intended as a review of English on a high school level. This will be taught by John Burris, of Bristol high school, who needs no introduction to local people.

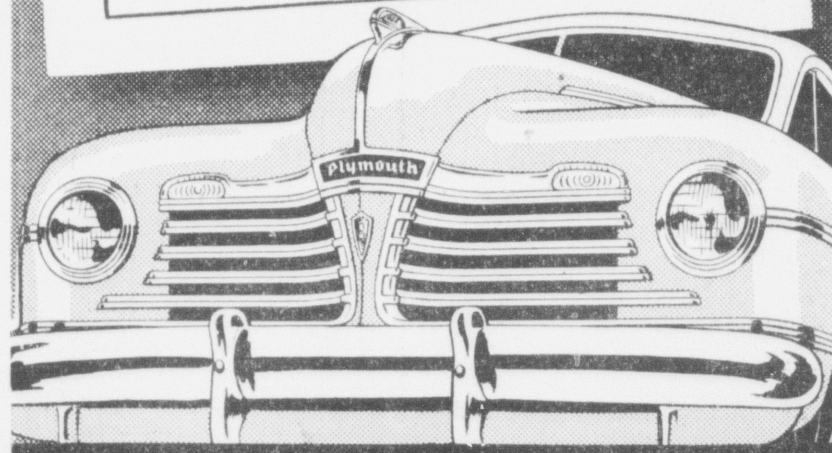

For those wishing something not quite so serious, but who would like to relax, folk dancing is suggested. This will be taught by the new physical instructor at Bristol high, Miss Phyllis Kallenbach, a local girl and product of Bristol schools. Miss Kallenbach promises lots of fun to those who enroll in this class, which will teach the dancing of the Virginia reel, Tinker's dance and quadrille.

Another interesting course for homemakers will be that of interior decorating.
